NEWS LETTER FROM STATE DEPARTMENTS

Columbus, Ohio.—The legislative chambers of both branches of the present General Assembly have been crowded at all sessions the past few days, preparatory to adjournment, the consensus of many legislators being adjournment if possible on Friday, April 12th. As a consequence numerous delegations interested in certain legislation, as well as visitors who wish to see the law-making body of the state in operation, are present at all sessions.

The Herbert-Martin bill recodifying the Ohio election laws passed the senate unanimously and every member of that body who spoke upon the bill praised Secretary of State Clarence J. Brown and Assistant Secretary John G. Belknap, for their assistance to the committee in redrafting the bill and putting it in proper shape for passage. It has been sent to the House where it undoubtedly will receive favorable action. It is an administration measure, eight of which have been approved by either Senate or House.

The "Bible Bill" is resting peacefully in the morgue, having been consigned there by the schools committee of the House by a vote of 12 to 1 on consideration of the bill which is tantamount to "killing" the measure. Increase in the gasoline tax from three to four cents per gallon and establishment of a state highway police system have been recommended by the House highway committee. They will have to be approved however, by the house calendar committee before they can be brought up for action.

The Marshall anti-salary buying bill after passing the Senate unanimously also passed the house by a vote of 125 to 0—some record. It now goes to the Governor for that official's action. The House has also approved the Norton bill abolishing state highway assessments against abutting property owners. The Senate has passed a bill providing for the erection of a monument to the Ohio National Guard.

State Highway Director Robert N. Waid will announce the successful bidders in a few days for proposed highway improvements with a total mileage of 27.3 at an estimated cost of $879,759.94, which also includes bridges and culverts. The work of computing the bids of some seventy-five contractors has been some task but it is now about completed. The largest contract calls for the completion of 6.63 miles of the Upper Sandusky-Delphos road in Hancock county on the Lincoln Highway. It is a Federal aid project and is to be completed by November 15th. The cost of the improvement has been estimated at $209,818.65.

Director Hal H. Griswold and his able assistant, Charles E. Sherwood, of the Department of Public Welfare, have been two active officials since assuming office under the new state administration. They are making a survey now of the department with the end in view of improving conditions in the twenty-one institutions under their jurisdiction, with a population of 39,000 inmates and property valuation of over $40,000,000, including 15,214 acres of land and an annual expenditure of over approximately $9,000,000. These institutions have 3,500 officers and employees and the two heads of the department are facing one of the busiest times of their career.

There is much activity around the Capitol building and grounds now that spring has arrived. Painters, decorators and carpenters are having their inning while the landscape gardener and assistants are beautifying the Capitol Park. Trees are starting to bud while the shrubbery with lateral shoots is showing much greenery. The smooth green lawn of the park comes to be uprooted by the peaky little squirrels, hunting a place to secrete their goodies, furnished them by out-of-town visitors and hundreds of kiddies who visit the grounds daily and delight in feeding the pets.

A favorite idea of extension workers and others—that younger farmers and homesteaders were more ready to adopt new practices than the older farm population—has been exploded by a survey of 1,886 persons. The survey showed that age had little to do with readiness to adopt new methods.

One by way of Hamilton and Franklin to Wright Field and the other by Ft. Ancient, Xenia, Old Town and the Piquette Battlefield near Springfield, the two routes joining near the National Pike.

The Golden Rule Class of the M. E. church was entertained last Thursday evening at Cedar Inn.

COUNCIL TO CHANGE PARKING

Council decided Monday evening to adopt the rule of parallel parking for automobiles in order that there would be more room for traffic. Several years ago automobiles were parked "head in" but latter to permit greater safety parallel parking was adopted on the west side of Main street.

There are a number of reasons why parallel parking is best. It may not be as easy to park but it provides a safer method of leaving the curb. It removes the long trucks and automobiles from the center of the street. Several accidents have happened within the past year due to "head in" parking and most towns are getting away from it. Cedarville enjoys good streets that are well lighted and there is plenty of room for parking. When the streets are marked off Main and Xenia avenue will have nothing but parallel parking. The public is asked not to park in front of the Opera House for only long enough time to transact what business is necessary in the Post Office. It is the desire of council that that space be left open so that the public can drive up, get their mail and leave. This is but a request of Post Office patrons.

A new gas rate ordinance was adopted by council for a five year period. The old ordinance provided for two years but the new rates will hold for five years.

William J. Currie Commits Suicide

Poor health and despondency are given as the reasons for the act. He leaves a wife and a sister, Mary Currie. The funeral was held Tuesday with interment in Yellow Springs cemetery.

APRIL ONE HAD ITS JOKE

NATURE MONTH BY MONTH—APRIL

By Prof. Allen C. Conger, of the Department of Zoology,
Ohio Wesleyan University

APRIL is here—a mild-mannered success to the wild and boisterous March. The flowers of May are hidden in her gentle showers and with her soft southerly breezes she wafts to us a host of feathered travellers decked in gayest wedding garb. Mother Nature, who so lately whispered the secret shyly and softly, now fairly shouts aloud that Spring is here. The matin which greets the rising sun and the even-song of drowsy birds are but preludes and postlude to a swelling daily chorus whose strains can not fail to attract the attention of nature lovers everywhere.

Freely flowing sap marks the time for the spring visit of the Sapsucker, which is our only destructive woodpecker. He is often confused with the two resident species. Hairy and Downy, but no careful observer can fail to note the differences in color-pattern, habits and voice. Long before flying insects can be considered common, our familiar friends, the Chimney Swifts return to sweep in swinging arcs across our April sky. Their winter home is still a mystery, so complete is their disappearance during the winter months.

The Red-winged Blackbird and the Bronzed Grackle, with its more somber cousin the Rusty Grackle, were March arrivals and the blackguard Cowbird was already here. Now the more decorative members of the family appear. The flashing black-orange Baltimore Oriole sings from the top of an elm as he inspects suitable nesting sites. His smaller chestnut-black cousin, the Orchard Oriole is rarer and more shy, but when apple trees are in bloom look for this handsome fellow and his olive-backed mate. Out in the open fields where the brilliant yellow vest of the Meadowlark already gleams we turn near the month-end to greet the rollicking Bobolink, whose jingling song announces his return from a winter spent on the sunny grass-lands in far-away South America.

The Sparrow family looms quite important in the news items of the month. Tree Sparrows and Junco who have been our winter guests are now in flocks preparing for their northward journey which must soon be undertaken. Some Song Sparrows were so bold as to spend the winter here and they have now been joined by their less venturesome brothers and sisters. The big rusty Fox Sparrow has already paid us an early visit enroute to a more northern nesting ground.

Early in April we welcome the do-mine Field Sparrows with their whistled "foo-foo-foo-foo-few-few-few" and the sweet-voiced Vesper Sparrow. The white outer tail feathers are a distinctive field mark of the latter species.

The little chestnut-capped Chipping Sparrow is back in the do-yard again and late in the month the still smaller Grasshopper Sparrow sings its insect-like trill from the wood-stalks of our drier fields. A clear whistled "peepody" can mean only that the White-throated Sparrow is making its spring stop-over. Other less well known species are here too. The Savannah Sparrow and the Swamp Sparrow, often pass through unnoticed except by careful observers.

Swallows now come in numbers. Purple Martin scouts investigate new apartments and make ready to give battle to the ubiquitous English Sparrow. Graceful Barn Swallows are now back and along our streams, where steep banks or stone bridge abutments offer nesting sites, the drab Bank Swallow and the Rough-winged Swallow may be found.

The arrival of the vanguard of the Warblers is a prophecy of importance to the bird student, for these little creatures, many of them brilliant in color, are of perennial interest to all who know and love our native birds. The Myrtle Warbler, with its four yellow patches on crown, wings and rump is quite the earliest of all, to be followed by the Yellow Warbler which carols from the willows by the river's edge. The Black-and-White Warbler, a tree trunk gleaner and the shy Louisiana Water Thrush of our damp woodlands along streams—these are the forerunners of a veritable host of relatives soon to come.

The Catbird, in a smartly tailored suit of gray, calls to us from a shrubby clump as we pass and the brown bird which dashes into a roadside tangle can be only its country cousin, the Brown Thrasher. Perhaps they have learned still greater power of mimicry while they were visiting their southern relative, the Mocking-bird. We shall soon see whether the new Wren Box will do, for the males are here and soon these busy little birds will be looking for house-keeping rooms.

What a month April should be for us all. Who could be a pessimist when every bush and tree is vocal with the message that "all's right with the world."

DRYING UP WASHINGTON AND CONGRESS

Prohibition is undergoing somewhat of a test from a public sentiment standpoint just at this time. However the situation is no different than it has been in the past, the public now having the opportunity of hearing some things that many did not know existed.

In the first place Washington, D. C., is as wet or wetter than New York City or Chicago. Second it is a known fact that in proportion to population Congress is likely wetter than the nation at large. It has a larger per cent of men who vote for dry measures and drink wet.

At present two Congressmen are facing charges for violating the eighteenth amendment in bringing liquor into this country through ports of entry. Both have been listed as dry. One moderately dry and the other an, Ohioan, bone dry on all measures.

Official Washington is far from dry at any time. Dry congressmen attend banquet after banquet with plenty liquor to be had and what is worse from the standpoint of prohibition leaders, the true situation has been misrepresented to the public. Foreign legations receive their liquor by the truck load and here congressmen delight to revel at social affairs.

No Washington is not dry. Congress is not as dry as you think it is and prohibition is not receiving the moral support from many millions of moderately dry folks because of the sham being practiced by congress and government officials. Certain leaders in reform organizations are well aware of the situation but say nothing. More attention to Washington and less to the hip pocket violator will put more interest behind the prohibition enforcement laws.

WE ENTERED THE WAR TWELVE YEARS AGO

Saturday, April 6, it will be twelve years since the late Woodrow Wilson signed the senate joint resolution that officially declared war on Germany. For two years following there was suffering and sacrifice. The whole world was under going changes, never to return in many instances to the old order.

While the young men answered the call of their country that a war for higher ideals might be won, there were profits being taken on the farm, in the factory and the counting house such as was never known before and will never be experienced again by this present generation.

The war taught us many new things. Science and invention came to the front as we have never witnessed because there had not been for years the necessity or the field for the inventive mind. Mass production was introduced not to add to profits of manufacturers but to meet the demand of the government for supplies to be used abroad. Then came the end of the war and the reaction in industry and finance and the general re-entrenchment.

With the war came prohibition, an issue of fifty years standing that was finally settled in an official way yet not fully accepted by the entire citizenship and never will be other than by education of the coming generations.

It was the war that resulted in the birth of the American Legion which celebrated its tenth birthday, March 15 and 16th last. The Legion was organized for the perpetuation of the some lofty ideals in times of peace as their members fought and bled for in time of war. Its service will continue to grow and the cause it will defend will never die. Much history has been written since April 6, 1917. It is predicted that International law will be more fully respected in the future than it was previous to that momentous date.

MYRON T. HERRICK—A NOBLE MAN

Outstanding among the many great virtues of heart and mind of Myron T. Herrick was his love of his fellowmen. It was a great and abiding love, a vast and unfeeling love of affection whose waters were replenished always faster than they were drawn upon, though given without stint. It was this love that gave one of the most beloved Americans of all time that understanding, tact and sympathy which served so admirably in all his contacts with his fellowmen.

As a boy, Myron T. Herrick had rubbed shoulders with toil. He knew the problems of the vast army of workers who do their work and go "unhonored and unsung," after living the lives of the common people. As a man, he knew the rich and the great—the richest and greatest of his generation. As boy and man, he ever went on, winning friends through his consideration of others, his absolute lack of selfishness and his indefatigable industry, loyalty and enthusiasm.

The life of America's great ambassador must always be of an inspiration to the poor boys of the United States. He has no special privileges, chances and opportunities that he did not himself create. He relied solely upon himself and was self-made in every sense of the word. He was the brilliant product of ambition in life and of willingness to work patiently and without stint toward the goal he had fixed for himself.

He was successful because he earned the success he achieved. He worked his way through college. He worked while he studied law. And after he was admitted to the bar, he worked harder than ever. He doubtless would have become one of the most eminent lawyers of his generation had he remained in the law, but accident took him into another calling. Back of this accident were love and trust in a friend.

He had endorsed a note for this friend. The note became due and was paid. Mr. Herrick sacrificed his modest personal fortune at that time, though under no obligation to do so, as the bank had not complied with legal formalities looking to collection of the note. His honesty won for him a position of trust and responsibility with the institution and started him on the career in business, which was destined to carry him to such great heights.

Mr. Herrick made money because he was honest and universally trusted and liked. He had the confidence and respect of all with whom he came in contact. Had he cared solely for money, he probably could have achieved any goal fixed for himself. But money to him was only a means to an end, an instrument through which he could do more good for his fellowmen. It was natural and inevitable, hence, that he should be called into the field of public service.

His political career began more than 40 years ago. It was in 1886 that he launched his career of public service by winning a seat in the common council of the city of Cleveland. From this modest post he jumped to the proud position of governor of Ohio. His outstanding ability won the admiration of American presidents. Once he refused an appointment as ambassador to Italy, and thrice, under as many American presidents, he declined to become secretary of the treasury. Subsequently, he was made ambassador to France—and then and there the man of destiny for France was created.

When the war clouds broke, Ambassador Herrick, for a time, was the French nation in dealing with the foe. The government deserted Paris and the most prominent French families were fleeing the capital in the threat of capture by Germany, but the American ambassador stood his ground. He gave new courage to the French by his example and through this became the most beloved official of another government ever to have served in the French capital. France mourns his passing as deeply and sincerely as does his native land.

The splendid record he made in the trying days of the war he added to in the days of peace when he became the symbol of good will and friendship. At all times and under test, he did the right thing at the right time, whether it was moving to purchase official quarters for the representative of the American government or welcoming and protecting a hero like Lindbergh. Quietly, efficiently and effectively he moved, always doing good, building more friendship for America and adding to its store of international good will.

A splendid diplomat, a great American and a noble man is lost to this country in his passing. His life work always will be a source of ceaseless inspiration in good citizenship, lofty political service and deal, and outstanding public service and usefulness.

Pens At Wooster On Tour in April

Living demonstrations of the results of feeding experiments carried on during the past year at the Ohio Agricultural Experiment Station, in the form of several carloads of cattle, hogs, and sheep, will be exhibited in three Ohio cities in April, following the annual Livestock Day at the experiment station at Wooster.

Animals which have been the subjects of feeding experiments, together with the men who have conducted the work, will appear at Kenton on April 22, at the Columbus Cooperative Yards on April 24, and at the Cincinnati Stock Yards on April 26. The animals will be sold at auction after the meeting at Cincinnati.

Specialists from the experiment station and from the animal husbandry department of the Ohio State University, will attend each meeting and will explain the purposes and results of the feeding experiments, with the animals themselves as the object lessons.

The Cantata presented last Sabbath night by the choir, under the leadership of Mrs. Walter Corry, was highly appreciated by the splendid audience which packed the church.

On Monday night The Broadcasters class met at the manse, and surprised the pastor of the church, who was taken completely off guard, a splendid covered dish supper was enjoyed by all. A business meeting followed at which the class voted to pledge the sum of $500.00 to the Pipe Organ fund.

On Tuesday night Mr. and Mrs. William Conley acted as hosts to the members of the choir for a covered dish supper. A splendid repast was followed by the playing of games, and everyone had a most enjoyable evening.

At the regular monthly meeting of the Mizpah Bible class, held at the home of Mrs. Mary McMillan, it was voted to change the $300.00 which had been voted toward the repair fund, to the pipe organ fund of the church. This was above the sum of about two hundred already in hands for the same purpose.

Miss Ruth Burns will spend the week-end with friends in Columbus.

Authorities say that the weight of the hair naturally depends upon its length and thickness. It is rare that the hair weighs more than 12 ounces, although where there is considerable growth it may attain from 14 to 16 ounces.

A STATEMENT TO THE FARMERS of GREENE CO.

Several months ago we announced an entirely new change in our policies. We believed that the people of Greene Co. would be willing to pay cash for their GASOLINE and OIL if they could buy at greatly reduced prices. So we placed our business on a strictly CASH basis. Now our beliefs have been justified and our Gasoline and Oil trade has grown to the place where it was necessary to acquire new property in order to take care of the tremendous volume of business that we have been doing.

So we are announcing the purchase of the Dewine Milling Co.'s plant. This plant is to be rebuilt and will be used by us for the exclusive sales of HIGH GRADE MOTOR OILS at greatly reduced prices.

We urge every farmer to see us before buying their oil.

Remember we
BUY FOR CASH
SELL FOR CASH

Hence we sell at greatly reduced prices.

EDUCATIONAL PREPARATION A GROWING REQUIREMENT FOR SUCCESS IN MODERN BUSINESS

Death-Knell Sounded for Guesswork and Slipshod Methods by Advancing Technical Proficiency in Finance, Trade and Industry—How Banks Are Developing a Professionally Qualified Generation of Younger Bankers.

By HAROLD STONIER
American Bankers Association

THE great school of Experience is still holding classes in America, but the scientific spirit of the age has so generally invaded the workshops of industry and trade that they have largely become technical research and training laboratories in themselves and are no longer run on the old-fashioned cut-and-try methods of former generations when Experience was considered the only teacher. It would be hard to find a working force in any pre-eminent successful business or industrial organization in the United States today but what the dominating leadership is schooled in the scientific principles of its specific field, whether manufacturing, merchandising or finance. The rapidly advancing business in this country, with their relentless demands for efficiency as the only hope for survival in the competitive struggle for economic existence, has sounded the death-knell for guesswork and slipshod methods.

As a result, educational preparation in the techniques of commerce, industry and finance are virtually essential to outstanding success in these fields, as it is already an absolute prerequisite in the various recognized professions. This is not to depreciate the value of native ability and experience in business, but education is a means for helping the individual to apply the best of the accumulated experience of many to his own day's work—a means for helping special native ability to come into its own more rapidly and surely and for enabling all classes of ability to gain the maximum of success to which they are entitled.

These facts are plainly recognized by practical, work-day business in every line. Every progressive business organization in America is emphasizing the importance of education as never before. Education has come to be looked upon as the answer to many of the problems within the organization as well as to problems affecting industry as a whole.

Business Organizing Institutes. Institutes for developing specifically qualified workers are being operated or organized in many fields of commercial and industrial activity. These institutes are trying various types of educational work with a distinct trend toward more and more emphasis upon education for the rank and file of business employees of all grades.

We have been having business failures in this country at the rate of about 2,000 a month. This score applies for itself. It is glaring evidence of incompetence on the part of thousands of business men in handling the problems inherent in their fields of endeavor. The detailed records show that practically 75% of business failure in this country is due to lack of training and competence on the part of those who failed. This is conclusive evidence that no one can afford to undertake executive business responsibility without adequate education and training. It is for that reason that every enlightened business organization is today insisting as never before that its employees take advantage of some type of technical training.

American banking is fortunate and has just cause for pride in that it has a record of twenty-eight years of definitely organized educational activity among its workers to its credit for developing trained bankers. People in banks in large numbers are taking advantage of the educational opportunities given by the great non-commercial college of the banking business, the American Institute of Banking. They see on every hand evidences of the value of the training it gives. Of the 10,000 graduates of this Institute, 70% now occupy official positions in American banks. The other 30% are still too young to have attained such heights. Here is an example and an encouragement to the people of all lines of business.

The American Institute of Banking has a membership of 64,320. Of these 35,821 are class enrollees, comprising younger bank people, both men and women, who are learning the scientific technique of their chosen business at the same time they are engaged in the practical work of earning their living at it. The difference between the 35,821 enrolled in classes and the 64,320 total membership comprises older bankers who have taken the Institute courses in the past or are at the present time sponsoring some type of educational work in the organization.

Banking Educates Its People. It has been estimated that there are probably 275,000 bank officers and employees in the United States at the present time. These figures would mean that about one banker in every six is either enrolled in Institute classes in banking or is actively supporting some educational function of the organization. No statement could possibly give more emphasis to the importance placed on education by the banking interests of America than these facts.

This American Institute of Banking.

Bees Only Insects Orchardist Trusts

Can Be Relied On To Pollinate Trees—May Need Some Bouquets

Planting fruit trees in large blocks, as in orchards, and carefully cultivating the ground about them, makes it difficult, if not impossible, for the casual honey bee and the wild insect to accomplish the task of pollinating the trees, which they must do if there is to be a crop of fruit in the orchard.

Honey bees are the only insects, according to Virgil N. Argo, extension specialist in beekeeping at the Ohio State University, which the fruit growers can bring into their orchards, in sufficient numbers to insure complete fertilization of the blossoms.

Ossardists who get the most benefit from the use of the bees as pollinating agents, place a colony of the bees on each acre of orchard. "No other precaution need be taken, if the orchard is made up of alternate plantings of varieties which are capable of effecting cross-pollination," says Argo. "But should the orchard be made up of self-sterile varieties, it is necessary to bring in large bouquets of blossoms from some variety which will cross-pollinate the variety in the orchard. These bouquets are placed in tubs of water near the beehives, and through them cross-pollination can be easily brought about and a good set of fruit assured."

FOR SALE—Twenty hives, weight about 40 lbs. Phone 21-191. Wm. Lackey.

Heat and Coldness
Cold is the relative want of heat, and there are no determinate boundaries between cold and heat. By a mere arbitrary distinction the degrees of a thermometer below the freezing point are sometimes called degrees of cold.

United States Fisheries
It is estimated roughly that in the United States about 12,000 persons are engaged in our ocean fisheries. The catch totals annually almost $400,000,000 pounds of fish, and the fishermen receive from $105,000,000 to $110,000,000 for their labors.

Similarity in Diseases
Silicosis, a disease caused by the inhalation of dust, gives rise to symptoms exactly similar to tuberculosis. To make a differential diagnosis between the two is extremely difficult.

Clean Plowing Hard On Barley Scab Bug

Burying Old Corn Stalks Reduces Infection From Over-Winter Fungi

Clean plowing and complete coverage of all old stalks in fields which have grown corn and which are to be seeded to barley this season may aid in avoiding the effects of barley scab, which was unusually bad in Ohio last year, according to A. L. Pierstorff, extension plant pathologist in the Ohio State University.

Parasitic fungi which cause the scab live over the winter in the old corn stalks. Plowing the cornstalks under the soil, reduces the spread of fungi from them to barley planted in the field.

Pierstorff has received many samples of barley seed from last year's crop, which is badly scabbed, with requests for information about possible treatment. Ohio's barley harvest last year was much greater than usual because of the failure of the winter wheat and the spring planting of barley in fields which had to be abandoned as far as wheat was concerned.

Barley seed which is scabbed should be cleaned thoroughly with a strong air blast, and treated with a staminal mercury dust disinfectant, before being planted, Pierstorff recommends. Scab infection carried over on the seed will have as bad an effect as that which might arise from the old corn stalks not plowed under.

Mother's Cook Book

"Go forth this day with the smallest expectations, but with the largest patience, with a keen wish for and appreciation of everything beautiful, great and good, but with a tender remembrance that the friction of the world shall not wear upon your sensibilities."

SOUPS

WHERE there are growing children, there are growing needs. There are aged members of the family, especially the nourishing kind are invaluable. A cream soup is substantial enough for a main dish for luncheon and good for a winter night for supper. If the main meal is taken at noon, there is a soup which will "stay by" and make a full meal with bread and butter.

Cream of Potato Soup.
Scald a quart of milk with a slice of onion. Cook two or three potatoes, according to size, until soft; mash, add one-half cupful of cream or two tablespoonfuls of butter. Add the scalded milk, bring to the boiling point, season well with salt and pepper and serve hot.

Veal and Celery Soup.
Cut up three pounds of veal, break the bones, cover with four quarts of cold water and simmer for four hours; strain and return to the heat. Add two bunches of celery and two chopped onions; simmer until the vegetables are well cooked. Press through a fine sieve, thicken with two tablespoonfuls of cornstarch mixed with two cupfuls of milk. Add two tablespoonfuls of butter in small bits; reheat and serve with croutons.

Veal and Sage Soup.
Take two and one-half pounds of veal, three quarts of cold water, one-fourth pound of pearl sage, two cupfuls of scalded milk, four egg yolks and salt and pepper to season. Finely chop the meat, cover with water, bring slowly to the boiling point and simmer two hours, skimming occasionally. Soak the sage in cold water to cover, one-half hour; stir into the hot stock, cook 30 minutes and then add the milk. Pour the mixture slowly over the well-beaten eggs and season with salt and pepper.

Sweetbread Soup.
Reheat one quart of veal stock and add two cupfuls of cream which has been beaten with two egg yolks. Take from the heat, season to taste, then add one cupful of parboiled sweet breads cut into bits. Garnish with a cupful of whipped cream and a bit of minced parsley.

Egg Soup.
Butter six slices of stale bread, sprinkle with sugar and brown in the oven. Reheat two cupfuls of veal stock, two cupfuls of milk, three egg yolks lightly beaten. Add a tablespoonful of butter, season with salt and pepper, minced parsley and a grating of nutmeg. Pour over the toast, cover ten minutes and serve.

Lesson for April 7

THE MINISTRY OF ISAIAH

LESSON TEXT—Isaiah 61-13; 20:1, 2, 3; 21:1-4.

GOLDEN TEXT—Then said I, here am I, send me.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Being God's Helper.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Being God's Helper.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Finding a Life Work.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Obedient to the Heavenly Vision.

1. Isaiah's Call (Isa. 61-13).

2. Isaiah's vision of the Lord (vv. 1-4).

(1) He saw the Lord on His throne (v. 1). The supreme need of a servant of God is to have a vision of Him.

(2) He saw the seraphim above (vv. 2, 3). Their position indicated that they were in readiness to do His bidding. The six wings showed their ability to execute the divine will. One pair veiled the head from the divine glory, one veiled the feet which had been soiled in contact with the world, while the third was held in readiness to depart on the divine errand. Their continued cry was, "Holy, holy, holy."

(3) He saw manifestations of majesty (v. 4).

As the seraphim cried, the very doors moved and the temple was filled with smoke. Smoke symbolizes the divine presence in anger (Exod. 19:18; 29:18). This indicated that the selfishness, idolatry and wickedness of Israel had provoked God's wrath.

2. Isaiah's conviction of sin (v. 6).

When he saw the vision of the Holy God, he was smitten with a sense of sin. The reason men think small of themselves is that they have never seen God. Face to face with the Lord, Isaiah saw himself as wholly vile.

3. Isaiah cleansed from sin (vv. 6, 7).

Having been convicted of sin and made to confess it, a burning coal sent from the altar purged away his guilt.

4. Isaiah's call (v. 8).

His call from God did not come until after his cleansing. The purged soul is ready for the Lord's service.

5. Isaiah's dedication (v. 8).

As soon as he was cleansed he responded to the call for service. He did not inquire as to the issue, but freely gave himself to that service.

6. Isaiah's commission (vv. 9-13).

Because of the unpromising outlook, Isaiah shrank from his responsibility. He was assured that the people's blindness and sin could not endure forever. They would continue in sin, be taken into captivity, and the land left desolate. Their life, however, would be as the oak which sheds its leaves and is for a time apparently lifeless, but still retains its substance.

11. Isaiah's Prophecy Concerning Assyria and Egypt (Isa. 20:1-4).

The increasing power of Assyria alarmed the Jews who were inclined to turn to Egypt and Ethiopia for help. Isaiah severely rebuked them for turning away from God to Egypt (21:1-4).

1. The prophet's action (vv. 1, 2).

He removed his outer garments and walked about Jerusalem as a beggar in order to make a deep impression upon the people.

2. The significance of the sign (vv. 3-5).

For three years he went about in the dress of a beggar. As he had wandered about naked and barefoot, so would Egypt be led away in shame by the Assyrians.

3. The warning (v. 6).

"The people are made to say, 'Such is our expectation, whether we do for help to be delivered from the king of Assyria: how shall we escape?'"

111. Isaiah's Message to Hezekiah (Isa. 38:1-8).

Hezekiah had inclined somewhat toward seeking help from Egypt.

1. Hezekiah's sickness (v. 1).

For this disability God sent sickness as a means of chastisement.

2. Isaiah's first message (v. 1).

"Set thine house in order for thou shalt die and not live." This doubtless is to be understood as a prophetic warning rather than a positive prediction.

3. Hezekiah's prayer (vv. 2, 3).

He pleaded with God for consideration on the basis of his faithfulness.

4. Isaiah's second message (vv. 4-6).

God sent Isaiah to tell Hezekiah that his prayer had been heard, his life would be prolonged by fifteen years, and that Jerusalem would be delivered out of the hand of the king of Assyria.

5. The sign given (vv. 7, 8).

The sign was the going back of the shadow of the sundial ten degrees.

The "NO SALE" POLICY. that this store adopted several years ago does not mean that prices are always high but rather that they are consistently at the same level, week in and week out, that is necessary for us to maintain them and make a legitimate profit on the furniture that we sell. This policy does not mean that we cannot offer a special or advertise a close out on any article should the occasion demand, but it does mean, that you as a customer, may purchase furniture any week or month in the year and feel assured that you have received full value for your dollar without waiting for a special sales event.

The trouble with most $250.00 five piece bed room suites, living room suites and dining room suites that have been marked down to $129.50 as a special sales event (by furniture stores that offer a new excuse each month as a reason for a sale), are that these suites were originally only fair $98.00 values. The average furniture customer does not know the difference between well constructed and poorly constructed merchandise until after it has a few months' service in the home. Stores of this type referred to actually know this and trade on their customers' lack of knowledge. Our reputation has been made by selling good furniture at the price most stores must ask for their cheaper grades and the reason we can do this is because of our knowledge of furniture and our exceptional location.

Signal Devices For Automobile Drivers

The growing number of automobile accidents over the country at railroad crossings should give rise to more and better protection at railroad crossings as well as more careful attention on the part of automobile drivers.

There is no question the railroad companies have a big problem on their hands and no doubt are trying to give the public some sort of protection. As far as the "wreckless driver" is concerned we doubt if the railroad company, the legislatures or the courts could do with him what all interests expect.

There are many devices made for crossing protection and the railroad companies have selected what they think is best but in most cases we notice that rather limited device for service has been installed. At certain crossings where there is always grave danger we notice the springing electric lighted arm signal, which has appealed to automobile owners and we are told it has proven very effective.

The great objection to the ordinary signal post is that if it faces the sun the motorist often is baffled whether it is in operation or not. The post is usually low to the ground and often obscured by some object. Motorists generally have not approved this type of signal as the best protection. In cities and towns the public has more confidence in a good watchman than any mechanical contrivance that frequently gets out of working order.

The following bulletin has been issued by the Pennsylvania railroad relative to the crossing campaign for safety.

The frequently with which some automobile drivers ignore flashing light warning signals at street and highway crossings over railroads is a source of considerable concern to railroad officials and to municipal Safety Directors of cities.

In spite of the Careful Crossing Campaign which has been carried on by railroads for several years, there is still a small percentage of auto drivers who refuse to be educated either through lack of watchfulness or ignorance although in this age of enlightenment, it is inconceivable that there is any one who drives an automobile who is not familiar with this very effective method of crossing protection which has been adopted as standard by all important railroads.

It is hard to find a town of any importance served by railroads in which these warning devices have not been installed at one or more crossings; in fact they might be called a mechanical crossing watchman who is always on the job for twenty-four hours, day and night.

In addition to the campaign sponsored by the railroads, the newspapers have aided the work thru their editorials and the publicity given when accidents occur from such disregard of warnings; Municipal authorities are constantly issuing warnings to the public; School officials are carrying on a campaign of education with the rising generation, and automobile clubs are co-operating with the railroads in an intensive effort to warn the individuals who approach and drive over railroad crossings recklessly, with the hope of preventing a repetition which may result in death or serious injury.

With the Railroads, Newspapers, City and School Authorities and the Automobile Clubs all putting forth such strenuous efforts to make railroad crossings safe for the public, it would seem that in a few years the goal should be reached; and accidents of this character should be the exception instead of a regular daily occurrence as now.

No TB Immunity In B. C. G. Vaccination

COLUMBUS.—That vaccinating cattle against tuberculosis with Bacillus Calmette-Guérin, confers no immunity upon the cattle, is the conclusion reached by scientists in the United States department of agriculture, after extensive experiments with the method, for which had been claimed much virtue as a protective measure. Guinea pigs, chickens, rabbits, and cattle were subjected to tests with the culture. The animals exposed to tubercle bacilli after they had been vaccinated with the "B. C. G." culture, were not immune to the disease, although its behavior in them was different from its behavior in animals which had not been vaccinated.

The experiments were conducted in response to a lively public interest in the subject of tuberculosis in dairy and beef cattle.

The conclusions of the men conducting the experiments was that the vaccination of the cattle with the "B. C. G." has no value as means of eradicating tuberculosis in livestock.
